

A Note for Parents:

A determiner is a word that introduces a noun such as a, an, every, three, many and those. Determiners can be split into several categories depending on their usage.

Definite and Indefinite Articles:

The definite article is 'the' and the indefinite articles are 'a' or 'an'.

Possessive Determiners:

These indicate ownership and include my, your, his, her, our, their, etc.

Interrogative Determiners:

They normally introduce a question about a noun and include which, what and whose.

Quantifiers:

Used to show the number of a noun and include few, more, less, three, another, many, etc.
